New York—Conditions are such that even a difference of normal carrying charges on late months in too much. Cotton contracts for distant delivery looks like an exceptionally good pur-chase—Slater to McPall.

Great Britain.—Beer to McFail.

New York.—A short interest here as well as in the English market keeps the strong and apparently headed for new high levels. The farmer is wisely selling his cotton. He is satisfied to pass the load on to others. The intosight for the week amounts to $0.00 bales more than for the corresponding week last year. The visible supply is 1.100.000 more than tast year. As soon as this present buying movement has run its course, the last buyers holding contracts and spot at the highest price on record may see the light at any moment and start trouble.—Ettelson to Clark & Co.

Chicago.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say: Current wholesale distribution of dry goods was far ahead of the same week a year ago, deliveries continuing in large volume to the very end of 1815. About the same number of customers were in market as during the same week a year ago. The volume of orders from salesmen on the road for both immediate and future delivery was much in excess of the same period a year ago. Collections were excellent.

New York—Crude oil again sold at 20 cents and rumors were current that within past few days some 20000 barrels of crude had been purchased. The buying of crude was credited to packers and refiners who it is believed were buying against export sales. Sentiment in oil quarters is rather mixed. Most of the professional crowd are inclined to the bear side, while conservative interests retain-their bullish attitude and some of these interests have been persistent buyers of futures of late. They predicted a 20-cent crude oil when the market was around 18 cents and this having been realized they are now predicting 21-cent crude. The entire grease situation with possible exception of lard has strengthened materially within the last two weeks and not only cotton oils but other greases scored good advances.

Stocks.

New York—There is a general feeling in banking circles that the period of high money is over tor time being at least. As it was high money that prevented the market from advancing last month when it exhibited a decided inclination to do so, a return to normal money rates would be bullish influences that would offset all that is bearish in the foreign financial situation.—Wollman to McFail.
